

Educators as Co-Learners

Recognizing that everyone is learning from each other and with each other (learning about children from children);

Engaging and offering assistance or suggestions to allow for extending and expanding play ideas;

Motivating children to build on their interests and ideas by offering materials that support and extend their play and learning;

Acting as a facilitator by allowing children to be the leaders of their learning experiences;

Ensuring the well-being and belonging of children and their families by connecting with them and building positive relationships.

